Research Participants Needed

A study examining fans' perception and understanding of American professional tackle football, concussions, and Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy

Principal Investigator: Danielle Funk (UNCG)
Faculty Advisors: Jennifer Etnier, Ph.D.; Christopher Rhea, Ph.D. (UNCG)

Who can be in this study?

• Adult (18 years and older)
• Familiarity with American professional tackle football, such as the National Football League (NFL)*

What do I have to do?

• You will be asked to complete a short questionnaire about your perceptions and understanding of American professional tackle football, concussions, and Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy (CTE). The questionnaire will be online and anonymous. It should take approximately 15 minutes to complete the questionnaire.

Where does this happen?

• The questionnaire is online, so you can complete it anywhere you have internet access and an internet-supporting device. You can even complete the survey from your phone!

Is there any compensation?

• There is no compensation for this study. However, your participation in the study will help add to the collective body of literature on concussions, CTE, American tackle football, and fans’ perceptions. Your participation will be greatly appreciated.

*This study is not endorsed by the NFL

To participate, please visit: https://uncg.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_9FCeO8bckK3gh25

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Danielle Funk at dcfunk@uncg.edu